r. Posts Experimenting on a New Theory. Old Dr. Potts, who lives out on Mission street, and who is an enthusiast in his profession, is the originator of the theory that much disease is transmitted to human beings through eating the firsh of immature animals, such as calves, in the early spring. The doctor maintains that the young animals in their inexperience out greedily of certain noxious weeds, and that the poison thereby assimilated is transferred to the consumer of the animal's fiesh. As this assertion was disputed by some of his contemporary M. D.'s, Dr. Potts determined to make some useful experiments before giving the world his discovery. He accordingly purchased a six months calf—one of that kind that appear to be built on stills—and as the doctor had no back yard to speak of, he had the brevet cow placed in the cellar, where he proposed to mix the weeds in question among its food for a few days prior to its being.

The horse cheved to the letter.

"Now, Peter, show the Detroit man how you take your place at the pole."

Down went the chain and the horse covered the distance at two jumps.

"Now well around the truck and come and take my hat off."

The horse obeyed to the letter.

"Now," continued the fireman, as he lay down on the floor, "step over me."

Peter lifted his feet very high and stepped softly over, and returned to his stall.

"That house is one of us," said the man, as he brushed off the dust and sat down "We can rest the foot of a ladder on his back and he will not move. Whenever we stand him at a fire there he will stay without watching. He eats with us, chews tobacco, likes beer, and would learn to play dominoes in a week, if he could only handle them."—[M. Quad.

he proposed to mix the weeds in question among its food for a few days prior to its being converted into test cuttets, so to spoak. The China boy was bribed not to mention the call's presence to the other members of the household, who, it happened, had been absent while the quadruped was being secretly let down through the coal hole by the butcher. To prevent its bleating the doctor had wedged a stout leather musule on its nose.

That night the doctor was awakened by Mrs. Potts, who sat up in bed and gasped in a horror struck voice:

A "New York Oring."

One of the little lambs picked up in the streets of New York, by Whitelaw Reid, and sent West to find a home, was adopted by a Detroit family about two months ago, and ere this is published, Mr. Reid has recreved a big postal card announcing that his dear lamb has gone West to fight Indians, and that he needn't mind about sending on another to take his

This New York lamb was 13 years old. He oour later he resterated this statement at the ouse, and added; "And if you don't believe t, then call me a liar! That's the sort of nouth on his sleeve, and gave the family to understand before supper was over, that he didn't come West to have his hair combed or his face washed as a regular business. On his first evening he slipped out, had three fights and stole a dog, and when hunted up he Concord Harness. was about to take his beer in a saloon. The family expected to wrestle with him for a while, and they didn't sit down to him until it became a painful becessity. During his first week he stole $5 in musey, a gold chars, a revolver, and a pair of ear-rings, and he got drunk twice. When reasoned with and saked to do better, he took a fresh chew of plug tobacco, and replied 2 "Oh! you Michigan people are too soft! If a fellow can't have a ood time, what's the use of being an orphan?"

On Monday of the second week he sold the family dog to a stranger for a quarter, threw the saw and az in the alley, and when locked up in a closet he tore a Sunday coat to pieces. It was thought best to have a policeman talk to him, and one was called in. He put on his ferces: look and lectured the lamb for fifteen minutes, but as soon as he stopped for breath the young sinner replied: "Now see here, old buttons, you are waisting your time! I know buttons, you are waisting your time! I know my little gait, I do, and if you think I've come to a village like this to be birfiled by anybody, you've missed your train!" He was taken so Sanday cohool by the band. He hadn't been there half an hour, when he was taken out by the collar. He seemed as rious to punch the head of every good little boy within half a mile of him, and he told the teacher of the class that when she could stuff Monos in the builtushes down him it would be after she had bleached out her freckits. They gave him a Sunday school book to fit his case, but he fitted it to a crack in the sidewalk on his way to the house.

When moral sansion had no effect on the wicked boy his guardian tried the rod. He was begger than the boy, and he walleped him, but within there hours two nats were taken of his buggy and thrown away. There was a second seems in the woodshed, and before flark a window glass, worth $3 was broken. That orphan was faithfully and duly and permistently wrestled with. He was couned and fathered. He was licked and reasoned with. Ambutation, prairiegh, force and were with Ambitation, granitude, fears and avartice was the first day so be was the first day so be was the last. He notified er, how old are you?"

"That's right, old boy. Do you remember when a loafer stabbed you at a fire?"
He did.
"Where is the scar?"
Peter bent himself almost double to bite his hip at a spot where a scar could be traced.
"Now, Peter, show the Detroit man how you take your place at the pole."
Down went the chain and the horse covered the distance at two jumps.
